Added GE overlays to Econ 540 (AERM, SJ and GP)

Two New Innovative Courses Taught: Econ 640/840 (Health Economics Analysis and Research) and Econ 540 (Economics of Gender).

Community Service Learning (CSL): First and only in the Economics Department to successfully incorporate CSL in my Health Economics Research and Analysis class starting spring semester of 2014.

Affordable Learning Solutions: Made class materials and readings available for free through SF State's Course Management website for Econ 540 students saving them at least $150 each.

Use of technology for effective student feedback: Piloting online feedback system in my Intermediate Micro economics classes through free grading software called Gradescope that allows consistent, rubric based feedback on qualitative and short answer questions.
